TOHIN.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tobin of Minerva, are rejoicing over the arrival of a fine son Sunday night at 10 o'clock. Mr. Tobin is a brother of Mrs. Thomas Lathrop of Bridge street.

Mrs. Blumhardt Knight left Sunday for Columbus, O., called there by the serious illness of her sister, Mrs. Louis Hensker.

Mrs. Haven D. Core, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Will Bateman, Mr. Raymond Pardee and his mother, Mrs. Jennie Pardee of Lexington, Ky., motored down Sunday in their Chalmers for a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gilmore.

Mr. J. H. Switzer lost a valuable work horse last Saturday while plowing at Springdale. The animal dropped dead in the harness.

SUNDAY'S RAIN

Amounted To Almost a Water Spout
In This City, Doing Some Damage.

The weather man was on the job all right for his predictions as to the weather in this vicinity as far as the rain was concerned.

Sunday afternoon about 4:30 a heavy rain and hail storm struck this community, coming from the southwest, and for a short time the rain came down in torrents with a mixture of hail and wind, turning the streets into miniature creeks all over the city.

On Bridge street the water rushed down to the hole under the C. & O. washing rock and sand onto the street car tracks, and a car attempted to go through it, but jumped the track. Another car went to its assistance and it, too, got off the track, compelling the company to transfer around them until they were replaced on the track.

The downpours on the new addition to the Central Garage on Market street, became choked and the water backing upon the almost flat roof, caused it, damaging two automobiles slightly.

On West Second street a choked sewer caused water to back up in the residence of Mr. Pearl Hylthie, the harbor, doing some damage.

A large barn on the farm of John Brannan in the Lewisburg neighborhood, was struck by lightning and burned, together with its contents. The loss is heavy.

Rain continued to fall at intervals almost the entire night, the government gauge reporting a total rainfall of 1.79 inches.

A large amount of damage was done throughout the county by washing of farm lands.

SUPERVISOR MITCHELL'S FINAL REPORT.

The Maysville market closed on Friday, March 24, in a most satisfactory manner to both buyer and seller, the prices on all grades being fully as high as at any time during the season.

The market sold 17,412,200 pounds for $1,948,543.19, at an average of $11.20. Last year's average was $8.21, this season showing an advance of $3 per hundred.

The market for the entire year has been better supported and held to a more uniform price day after day than any year since it was opened, there being no radical raises or falls.

The great number of factory buyers and brokers now located here makes it so that if one drops out there is another to take his place. This fact makes Maysville the most reliable daily market of northern Kentucky or southern Ohio.

The loss of one-third in pounds was largely made up to the grower in the advance in price, but fell very hard on the warehousemen.

The extreme high price of fertilizer is bound to cut the Carolina crop. Drying is having its effect in eastern Kentucky and southern Ohio and the high price for hemp will cut the central Kentucky crop, so it looks good for the tobacco grower of Mason and adjoining counties.

My advice to all is to grow all that you can PROPERLY CARE FOR BUT NOT ONE POUND MORE, for each season now clearly demonstrates that it is the careful hander that gets the money. As an illustration, one grower on Friday, March 24, sold his crop at an average of $24.43.

Here is hoping for a 30,000,000 sale in Maysville next year and a good crop. W. MITCHELL, Supervisor.

HUMANE SOCIETY MEETING.

Friday evening there was a called meeting of the Mason County Humane Society. The problems of the work were discussed and it was decided to try to get a trained and efficient worker to come here and take entire charge of the humane business. Some one who can give his entire attention to looking up the cases of neglect and cruelty in the county and city. Such a worker will have to be paid a salary while here. The Humane Society has eight-six names on its roll and since so many are interested in this good cause there need be no trouble about raising the salary of a Humane Officer. The people of the county should be as much interested as those in the city, and branch societies should be organized in every community.

MRS. CAL MCCARTHY DEAD.

Mrs. Cal McCarthy, aged about 90 years, died at her home at Minerva Saturday night of infirmities incident to age. She was one of the pioneers of the section in which she lived, having come here from Ireland when quite young and has been a resident of Minerva ever since. Her husband died about fifteen years ago. The funeral was held Monday morning at the Catholic church at Minerva, services by Rev. Father Coleman.

MRS. PETER KING

Former Maysville Lady Commits Suicide in Cincinnati By Jumping From a Third Story Window.

Mrs. Peter King, aged 54, widow of a former widely known contractor, Peter King, of Frankfort, while suffering from a nervous breakdown, jumped from a third-story window at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Kate Fitzgerald, in Cincinnati, Saturday morning and died from a fractured skull.

Mrs. King's husband, with John King, father of J. J. King, at one time were members of the contracting firm of Mason, Hoge & King, and the King brothers amassed a considerable fortune in the contracting business. At the time of her death Mrs. King was said to be very wealthy.

After the death of her husband Mrs. King resided in Frankfort and for several years had made her home with her nephew at the Frankfort hotel. She left Frankfort last October and went to Martinsville, Ind., where she remained three weeks, going then to the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Kate Fitzgerald, on Broadway in Cincinnati.

Upon going to Cincinnati, Mrs. King placed herself under the care of a nurse specialist, and upon his instructions she was placed under the care of a trained nurse. Early Saturday morning, according to information from Cincinnati, she escaped from her nurse and ran to an open window and leaped to the ground.

She was a daughter of Mr. John Fitzgerald of this city, and was a cousin of Col. C. T. Moore, County Road Supervisor, who left Sunday to attend the funeral which will be held in Louisville.

QUITE A COINCIDENCE.

If any one has it in their head that Maysville is not a healthy place in which to live, let them glance at this remarkable happening, which without arrangement, was noticed in the barbershop of Mr. George Selwart Saturday morning. Seven Maysville residents were in there at once, the youngest 75 years old and the oldest 90 years. Six of them were Col. Mathey, Col. Respass, Dr. Frazee, Mr. J. N. Kirk, Mr. John Hordlen and Mr. Charles Cannon.

Mrs. Elizabeth McCord of Flemingsburg, Ky., widow of William A. McCord, Company A, Sixteenth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, has, through her attorney, Nannie McKelup Peckles of this city, been granted widow's original pension at the rate of $12 per month; also the accrued pension due her husband.

Mr. James Riley of this city, and Mr. John Grant of the county, are members of the grand jury for the April term of the Federal Court, which convenes Monday, April 3, at Covington.

The West Union tobacco warehouse earned 15 per cent on its capital stock this season.

DRESS UP

You remember Shakespeare wrote, "The apparel oft proclaims the man." You know from experience this is true. You can't judge a man when you first meet him by his BRAINS OR CHARACTER, because you can't size these up at a glance; but you do unconsciously judge him by the clothes he is wearing.

March 27th to April 8th has been decreed "DRESS UP" time all over the country. This time has been dedicated to new Spring Clothes in recognition of the new season.

More men each year grasp the significance of better dressing. Some through personal experience; some through experience of others. "Hechinger" clothes are always "DRESS UP" clothes because they are fashioned by masters in design. Your taste in spring clothes may be conservative, or may favor the more noticeable, more radical models. We will show you both. You are sure of being dressed in perfect style and taste when you make your selection from our new spring models. We offer you a wide choice. As to price you may suit your own inclinations in this matter. Suits $10 to $30.

Reliability in Hunt's BLACK SILKS

Not all Black Silks are reliable in weave or dye, as many women have found out to their loss after wearing inferior weaves a short time. It is often actual economy to pay a trifle more a yard and get Black Silks that wear well, than to save the difference and have only disappointment instead of service. We call your special attention to the following weaves: Cashmere Charmeuse, Pussy Willow Taffeta, Crepe de Chine, Gros des Londres, Crepe Meteor, Georgette Crepe, Japs. Messaline, Taffeta, Charmeuse, Poplins, ranging in price from 50c to $2.25.

FARMERS!

Save Manure From Your Live Stock

It is as precious as the golden grain in your bin. Farmers in the old countries recognize this, and they not only save every pound and apply it in such a way that losses are reduced to the minimum, but they gather leaf moulds, sediments and mucks from swamps which they mix with manure in order to render them more valuable. Manure deteriorates very rapidly unless properly cared for. Don't leave it carelessly in the yard, thereby letting dollars get away from you, but come in TODAY and get a John Deere "hip-high" Spreader, the kind with the heater on the axle, and spread fertility and prosperity broadcast.

THE REPUBLICANS AND THE PRESIDENT.

As the debate on the McLeannor resolution is digested one finds many reasons why both Democrats and Republicans refused to walk up blindly and bow to the will of the Wilson administration regardless of the terms of the orders given to "Stand by the President."

The average man can not be deceived with respect to the attitude of American public men. There are in both parties men who differ regarding the degree of preparedness which the United States should maintain, and there are those who differ as to the policies and the attitude which the United States should exercise toward the warring nations of Europe, but it is not conceivable that any American citizen who has been given a commission as Senator or Congressman from any party will prove a "traitor" to his country. This term is lightly used by seldom justly applied. In a real crisis no American citizen will "vote for the Kaiser and against the President of the United States." Not even Mr. Bryan, the high priest of peace and unpreparedness, would hesitate to take up arms for his country in time of war, although he may be considered almost foolhardy in his present "peace at any price" campaign.

One trouble about "standing by" President Wilson, as Representative Cooper said the other day, is that "You can't stand by a man who won't stand still, who won't remain even comparatively stationary."

It may have escaped the notice of some, and he forgotten by others that President Wilson also changed his mind about armed merchant ships. Congressman Cooper read to the House of Representatives the other day an extract from a diplomatic note by President Wilson and Secretary Lansing in which the disarmament of all merchant vessels was proposed to the allies. This note said in part:

"In proposing this formula as a basis of conditional declaration by the belligerent governments, I do so in the full conviction that each government will consider primarily the humane purposes of saving the lives of innocent people rather than the insistence upon doubtful rights, which may be denied on account of new conditions," and "I should add that my government is impressed with the reasonableness that a merchant vessel carrying an armament of any sort in view of the character of the submarine warfare and the defensive weakness of modern craft, should be held to be an auxiliary cruiser and so treated by a neutral as well as by a belligerent government and is seriously considering instructing its official accordingly."

These declarations of less than sixty days ago are so diametrically opposed to the position the President now takes that his defender were compelled to remain silent under the taunts of his critics.

In view, therefore, of the vacillating policy of this administration which has been a constant source of danger to the peace and security of the people, is it any wonder that members of the national House and Senate prefer to choose their own method of giving expression to the real sentiments of the people they represent.

Regardless of these things, however, if the Republicans who voted to table the McLeannor resolution—there were seventy-four of them—had opposed it, the motion would have been lost.

Every Republican and Democrat should have voted to permit the President to proceed with the negotiations with Germany in his own way, and thus give notice to the world that there are no differences of opinion in America which can not be brushed aside on the instant where the rights of American citizens are involved, and yet it must be confessed that the wavering and changing and uncertain state of mind of the present administration at Washington has indeed sorely tried the patience of men in big places who would assist in the task of steering the country safely through these troublous times. Lexington Herald.

Another plank from the Baltimore platform has been thrown into the Democratic furnace now raging in Washington: "We believe in the preservation and maintenance in their full strength and integrity of the three co-ordinate branches of the federal government—the executive, legislative and the judicial—each keeping within its own bounds and not encroaching upon the just powers of either of the others," said that relic. But Congress was forced by President Wilson to vote on the armed merchantman question.

Stingaree

THE VILLAIN WORSHIPER.

THERE was no more fervent admirer of Stingaree and all his adventures than George Oswald Melvin. Despite this malicious nomenclature young Melvin helped his widowed mother to sell dance music, ballads, melodons and a very occasional piano-forte in one of the several self-styled capitals of Riverton, and despite both facts the mother was a lady of most gentle blood. The son could either teach or tune the piano with a certain grace and skill. He had once sung tenor in Bishop Melvin's choir, but, offended by a word of wise and kindly advice, was seen no more in the pulpit or in church. It was perceived that Oswald Melvin had all the aggressive independence of young Australia without the virility which tempers the truer type. Yet he was neither a base nor an unkind lad. His nature was a morbid temperament, which he could no more help than his sallow face and weedy person. Imagination he certainly had, but it fed on strong meat for an unhealthy mind; it fattened on the sordid history of the earlier bushrangers; his favorite fare was the character and exploits of Stingaree.

"Stingaree," he would say to his mother, "is the greatest man in all Australia."

With a few even younger men who admired his standpoint and revelled in his store of criminal annals or with his patient, insouciant mother Oswald Melvin was another being. His language became bright and picturesque, his animation surprising. A casual customer would sometimes see this side of him and carry away the impression of a rare young dandy. And it was one such who gave Oswald the first great moment of his bush life.

"Not been down from the back blocks for three years?" he had asked as he showed a tremulous and dilapidated bushman how to play the instrument that he had bought with the few shillings remaining out of his check. "Then on the spree and going back to drive a white until you've enough to go on mother? How I wish you'd tell that to our high and mighty lord bishop of all the back blocks! I should like to see his face and hear him on the subject. But I suppose he's now since you were down here last? Never come across him, eh? But of course you heard how good old Stingaree scored off him the other day after he thought he'd scored off Stingaree?"

The white driver had heard something about it. Young Melvin plunged into the congenial narrative and emerged minutes later in a drowsy glow. "You never knew him, did you?" whispered Oswald.

"Knew him? I've been taken prisoner by him!" said the white driver with the pause of a man who hesitates to humiliate himself, but is lost for the sake of that same sensation which Oswald Melvin loved to create. "Here's a man who's been stuck up by Stingaree!" Oswald cried, shaking hands in his delight. "Do keep an eye on the show, mother, and let him tell me all about it."

"Not for me!" put in the white driver when offered liquor. "I should like a drink of tea out of a cup if I'm to have anything."

Mrs. Melvin left them with a good humored word besides her promise. The tremulous tramp sat in Mrs. Melvin's own chair. "Now fire away!" cried Oswald. "Very well," said the white driver. "It was only the other day in a dust storm away back near the Darling, as had a one as ever I was out in. I was lashed and done for, gave it up and said my prayers. Then I practically died in my tracks and came to life in a sunny clearing later in the day. The storm was over. Two coves had found me and carried me to their camp, and as soon as I saw them I spotted one for Howie and the other for Stingaree."

"And how long were you there?" "About a week." "What happened then?" "They waited for the next dust storm and then cast me adrift in that." "You must have done something to deserve it," Oswald cried. "I did," was the reply, with hanging head. "I tried to take him."

"Take your benefactor—take him prisoner?" "Yes—the man who saved my life." Melvin sat staring. It was a story of lively incredulous disgust. "Then he sprang to his feet, a brighter youth than ever, his depression melted like a cloud. His villainous hero was a heroic villain after all."

It was certainly a battered and haughty figure that stole away into the bush. Yet the creature straightened as he strode into starlight undisturbed by earthly illumination. His pale left hand. Presently as he went he began fidgeting the new melodon in the way of a man who used not have sought elementary instruction from Oswald Melvin. And now a shining disk filled one unwashed eye.

Stingaree lay a part of that night beside the milk white mare that he had left tethered in a box clamp quite near the town. At sunrise he knelt and slaved on the margin of a government tank before breaking the mirror by plunging in. And before the next stars paled he was snugly back in older haunts, none knowing of his descent upon those of men.

There or thereabouts, hidden like the needle in the hay and yet ubiquitous in the attack, the bushranger remained for months. Then there was an encounter, not the first of this period, but the first in which shots were exchanged. One of these pierced the lungs of his melodon, an instrument more notorious by this time than the musical box before it, a still greater treasure to Stingaree. That was near the full of a certain summer moon; he was barely winking to the eye when the battered boy of melodons came for a new one to the shop.

The shop was closed for the night, but Stingaree knocked at a lighted window under the veranda, which Mrs. Melvin presently threw up. Her eyes flashed when she realized one against whom she now harbored a bitterness on quite a different plane of feeling from her former repulsion. Even to his first glance she looked an older and a harder woman.

"I am sorry to see you," she said. "I almost hate the sight of you. You have been the ruin of my son."

"His ruin?" "I will see you. You shall hear what you have done."

In another minute he was in the parlor where he had sat aforetime. "Is he ruined?" asked Stingaree. "Not irrevocably; not yet, but he may be any moment. He must be before long."

"But—but what ails him, madam?" "I remember. Yes; I understand. He was used about—Stingaree."

"It is madness now," said the bitter mother, "and you are to blame for the tale you told him."

"He is Stingaree in his heart," she went on. "Stingaree in his dreams. It is as debasing a form as mental and temperamental weakness could well take; yet I know, who watch over him late the night. He has an eye glass. He keeps revolvers. He has even bought a white mare! He can look extremely like the portraits one has seen of the wretched man. But come with me one moment."

She took the lamp and led the way into the little room where Oswald Melvin slept. He had slept in it from that boyhood in which the brave woman had opened this sort of shop entirely for his sake.

But Stingaree saw only the little bed that had once been far too large, the little still by its side, read or unread, the parents' portraits overhead. The mother was looking in an opposite direction. He followed her eyes, and there at the foot, where the infatuated fool could see it last thing at night and first in the morning, was an enlarged photograph of the bushranger himself.

And he had posed on the spot with eyeglass up and pistols pointed, as he saw himself now, not less than a quarter life size, in a great gaudy frame. But while he stared Mrs. Melvin had been rummaging in a drawer, and when he turned she was staring in her turn with glassy eyes. In her hands was an empty mahogany case with velvet moulds which ought to have been filled by a brace of missing revolvers.

"He kept it locked! He kept them in it!" she gasped. "He may have done it this very night!" "Done what?"

"Stuck up the Deniliquin mail. That is his maddest dream."

Stingaree was heavy for a moment with a mental calculation. "A dream it shall remain," said he.

"But there's not a moment to lose. I will cure him. But I must go at once. I have a horse not far away." "God bless you!" "Leave him to me."

His hands were in a lady's hands once more. Stingaree withdrew them gently, and he looked his last into the brave wet eyes raised gratefully to his. The villain worshiper was indeed duly posted in a certain belt of trees through which the coach route ran, about halfway between the town and the first stage south. It was not his first nocturnal visit to the spot. He was feverishly expecting the coach when a patter of hoofs smote his ear from the opposite quarter.

Stingaree swept through the trees at a gallop, the milk white mare flashing in the moonlit patches. At the sight of her Oswald was convulsed with a premonition as to who was coming. His heart palpitated as even his heart had never done before, and yet he would have set irresolute, inert and let the man pass as he always let the coach had the decision been left to him. The real milk white mare affected the imitation in its turn as the coach horses never had, and Oswald away and swam upon a whirling steed.

"I thought you were Stingaree!" "What if I am?"

"But you're not. You're not half smart enough. You can't tell me anything about Stingaree!" He put his eyeglass up with an air. Stingaree put up his.

"You young fool! You've thought your soul into a pulp on the subject, and you must give it up," said Stingaree sternly.

Oswald sat aghast. "But how on earth did you know?" "I've come straight from your mother. You're breaking her heart."

"But how can you have come straight from her?"

"I've come down for another melodon. I've got to have one, too."

Oswald Melvin now knew his drunken whim driver for what he had really been.

"The yarn I told you about myself was true enough," continued Stingaree. "Only the names were altered, as they say. It happened to the other fellow, not to me. I made it happen. He is hardly likely to have lived to tell the tale."

"Did he really try to betray you after what you'd done for him?" "More or less. He looked on me as a fair game."

"But you had saved his life?" "We rode across him."

"And you think he perished?" Stingaree nodded. "In torment."

"Then he got what he jolly well earned!" cried Oswald.

"You're thinking of commencing bushranging, eh?" "Rather."

"It's a hard life while it lasts and a nasty death to top up with."

"They don't hang you for it."

"They might hang me for the man I put back in the vile dust from whence he sprang. They'd hang you in six months. You've too many nerves. You'd pull the trigger every time."

"A short life and a merry one!" cried the reckless Oswald. "I should not care."

"But your mother would," retorted Stingaree sharply. "Don't think about yourself so much; think about her for a change."

The young man turned dusky in the moonlight. He was wounded where the bishop had wounded him, and Stingaree was quick to see it—as quick to turn the knife around in the wound.

"What a bushranger!" he jeered. "Put your pinky little mother in a side saddle and she'd make two of you—ten of you—twenty of a puny, namby pamby, cancelled young idiot like you! Upon my word, Melvin, if I had a mother like you I should be ashamed of myself. I never had, I may tell you, or I shouldn't have come down to a dog's life like this."

The bushranger paused to watch the effect of his insults. It was not quite what he wanted. Stingaree glanced up the road once more, but only for an instant.

"It is a dog's life," he went on, "whether you believe it or not. But it takes a bulldog to live it, and don't you forget it. It's no life for a young poodle like you! It requires something more than a six shouter, and a good deal more than was put into you, my son! But you shall see for yourself; look over your shoulder."

Oswald did so and started in a fashion that set the bushranger nodding his ascot. It was only a pair of lamps still close together in the distance up the road.

"The coach!" exclaimed the excited youth.

"Exactly," said Stingaree, "and I'm going to stick it up."

MASON COUNTY WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE LEAGUE THANKS SENATOR RAYBURN AND REPRESENTATIVE PURNELL

The following letter has been sent to the members from Mason county and the Thirty-first Senatorial district of the General Assembly of Kentucky:

Maysville, Ky., March 23, 1916.

Hon. L. N. Rayburn, State Senator, Thirty-first district of Kentucky, Head-of-Grassy, Ky.

Hon. Harry P. Purnell, Member from Mason County, General Assembly of Kentucky, Maysville, Ky.

Dear Sirs: At a meeting of the Mason County Woman's Suffrage League March 23, 1916, the official board were unanimously instructed to extend to you the high appreciation of the league of your vote on the Woman Suffrage Amendment Bill.

In the judgment of the league in voting "yes" you showed a just conception of democratic principles and a fuller sympathy with the principle of majority rule than did those of your fellow legislators who voted "nay," while claiming to represent the party that spells its name with a capital D.

With high regard and grateful appreciation of your service to the suffrage cause, to the cause of government of the people, for the people, by the people, most respectfully, Allice Lloyd, president; Mary A. Finch, first vice president; Mrs. S. M. Blatterman, second vice president; Mrs. S. F. Reed, third vice president; Mrs. C. F. Owens, fourth vice president; Mrs. Almer Ford, recording secretary; Mrs. G. W. Hook, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. M. Russell, treasurer; Mrs. John W. Power, auditor, and Sallie M. Thins, assistant auditor.

Senator Rayburn's vote was for submission of the amendment to the voters at the general election, November, 1917. The bill passed the Senate by a vote of 25 for to 8 against.

Representative Purnell's vote was to call the bill from the committee that the House might vote on it. Because of the activities of the administration and the "third house" the motion lost by a vote of 45 for to 46 against.

At the session of 1914 the largest vote in the House for the suffrage amendment was 32. The 1916 vote shows steady, wholesome growth. Friends of the suffrage cause feel that they have reason for congratulations only.

WE'D LIKE TO KNOW THE SAME THING.

(Cynthiana Democrat.) Attorney General Logan has construed the Hatchcraft law to mean that saloons on Sunday must be closed and have a clear enough front for the wayfarer, though a fool, to see clean, snick to the back door. Cynthiana, being a dry town, is not especially interested in the construction. What we want to know is how to see through the eye of a blind tiger.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

Run-down, Weak and Nervous—Made Strong by Vinol.

For the benefit of Maysville school girls who overwork and get into highly nervous, weak and run-down condition, we publish this letter from Dorris Coppler, of Fort Worth, Tex.,—

"I go to the high school and take music lessons, and become run-down, weak and very nervous, so I could not do anything. I would shake all over and could have screamed at times and was really unable to keep on with my studies. Mother purchased a bottle of Vinol for me and within a week I was better and in two weeks I had gained five pounds and felt fine."

It is the curative strengthening elements of the true cod liver extract, aided by the blood making, revitalizing effect of peptonate of iron and beef peptone, contained in Vinol, which made it so successful in building up health and strength and overcoming the nervous condition of Miss Coppler, and we ask every school girl in Maysville who is in a like condition to try Vinol, on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit. ## ROAD WORK

Nicholas County Ready To Begin
—Has $93,000 Available.

(Carlisle Mercury.)

The road crews are beginning to come in for the work of reconstruction on the turnpikes of Nicholas and within a few days, if the weather remains good, work should start in earnest. Work will be pushed on the East Union, Carlisle and Sharpburg, Carlisle and Parka Ferry, Maysville and Lexington and Bartonsville and Saltwell pikes. The Fiscal Court has advertised for bids on the Headquarters and Hooktown pike, to be received on April 4.

On the roads already under reconstruction, the following miles remain to be finished:

Maysville and Lexington, six miles on the north end and one and a half miles on the south end; East Union, six miles; Carlisle and Parka Ferry, six miles; Bartonsville, six miles.

It is the purpose of the Fiscal Court to take up the work on the other pikes of the county as soon as possible.

At the beginning of the work last year the court had about $137,000 available, including the bond issue and the county levy. About $40,000 of this was spent, leaving for this season about $97,000, with the county levy, approximately $13,000, after the cost of new machinery has been deducted, that can be applied on road work in Nicholas this year.

This has been a very remarkable season for the towboats and packets on the upper Ohio. There has not been a day for over seven months that navigation was not at its best. The only bad feature has been the wet condition, rendering it almost impossible for the farmers to get to the river to make their shipments.

The Korean rice crop was smaller in 1915 than in 1914.

Reports from Every State

All Agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Wonderfully Relieves Woman's Suffering.

From all parts of this country the clearest evidence is constantly coming to the office of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass., proving the wonderful power shown by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in controlling ills peculiar to women. Here are letters from Vermont, Arkansas and New Jersey:

It Cured Me!

Roxbury, Vt.—"A year ago last December I was taken with a female trouble and doctored for it but did not get any help until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My back troubled me a good deal and these troubles lasted so long that I grew terribly poor and I felt a great deal easier lying down. No one knows what I suffered. I did not dare consult another doctor I was so afraid he would say I had got to have an operation. I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was a god-send to me for after suffering about eight months this wonderful medicine cured me."—Mrs. NELLIE E. FRENCH.

Her Best Friend.

Weehawken, N. J.—"I must call you my best friend for what your remedies have done for me. I am 60, and am passing through the Change of Life and for some time I felt bad but since I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel fine and will recommend it to every woman who suffers as I did."—Mrs. KATHIE LEONHARDT, 419 7th St., Weehawken, N. J.

Had Awful Pains in Side.

Branch, Ark.—"Every month I suffered with cramping pains and I had awful pains in my left side. I was very irregular. I had a tired feeling all the time and did not sleep good at night. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and in three months I was well."—Mrs. MAE GATTIS, Branch, Ark.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

IMPORTANCE OF AMERICAN INDUSTRY TO BE EMPHASIZED IN A SYSTEMATIC MOVEMENT FOR ITS CONSERVATION.

New York, March 27.—Colonel George Pope, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, today announced the inauguration by the association of a nation wide movement in behalf of the industries of the United States. This is in accordance with the action of the board of directors at a recent meeting, when ample provision for financing and conducting the movement was made. This campaign is intended to enlist the cooperation of all Americans, regardless of their occupation, age or sex, and is absolutely without concern as to their political affiliations. In making the announcement Colonel Pope said:

"When the great European upheaval is ended, vast economic, commercial and financial changes are bound to ensue. In this international adjustment, the stability of American industry can be maintained and promoted only by the intelligent and concurrent action of all our citizens, independent of age, sex or political affiliations. Our purpose is fundamentally patriotic. The problem involves equally the worker, investor, merchant, manufacturer, farmer and every one directly or indirectly concerned in our national industrial welfare.

"It is high time that employer, employee and capitalist should compare notes on our industrial and commercial outlook. Joint action is absolutely necessary if we are to preserve the sovereignty of our business and the welfare of the millions of our citizens who are its beneficiaries. The best thought, the wisest counsel, must unite and determine broad plans for industrial security.

"In such a crisis, those who would attempt to humiliate, harass or embarrass patriotic American business men, should be rebuffed by an indignant public opinion. The gravity of the situation is too great to tolerate attacks by zealous incompetents and social experimenters.

"It is imperative that we take an inventory of American industry and appraise what forces are on the debit and credit sides of the account. Under unprecedented conditions that now exist, all legislative action designed to oppress industry should be halted. From patriotic considerations alone, all clamor for class privilege should stop, and all demand to restrict the free operation of industry should cease. Every worker in the United States—from the humblest toiler to the highest corporation executive—should realize, as never before, the imperative necessity for united, offensive and defensive action, if our productive industry and profitable commerce are to endure. Every employer in the United States should inform his workers and associates of the positive necessity for co-operative effort to conserve our industrial resources. It is even more important for the worker to realize the situation then for the employer. His livelihood is primarily at stake."

CIGARETTES THE CAUSE

Fifty Students in the Lexington High School Will Fail To Graduate This Year—"Smoked Up."

At least fifty students in the Lexington High School will probably fail to graduate this year on account of the effects of cigarette smoking was the declaration made in a communication from the city school board sent to George Land, commissioner of public safety, urging the latter to use his utmost efforts to enforce the laws prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors. It is stated in the communication that the grand jury found that cigarettes could be easily purchased in Lexington by minors, but it is suggested that as there is little profit in selling cigarettes the dealers might be induced to voluntarily be more careful in observing the law. In many cases, the communication recites, the cigarettes are bought by older persons for boys, but as the law prohibits the possession of cigarettes by boys under 18 years, the police might learn who had furnished the cigarettes by promising immunity to the boys for telling.

According to the manufacturing plans of the thirty large rubber tire companies in the United States, their output during the present calendar year will exceed 11,000,000 tires, of an average value of $20 at retail.

James Davis, an old and respected colored citizen of this city, died at his home in the Sixth ward Thursday morning.

MUST PAY THE BILL

Even Though Their Tax Limitations Have Been Reached, Court of Appeals.

Municipalities may not avoid liability for damages occasioned by negligence in the care of streets by reason of the fact that they have reached the constitutional limitation of their taxes in providing for the ordinary expenses of government, and the Court of Appeals refused to accept the argument that a city under such circumstances stands in the attitude of an insolvent judgment debtor.

This point was decided in affirming the Jefferson Circuit Court, which granted a mandatory injunction, requiring the town of Oakdale to levy a special tax to pay a judgment of $2,000 awarded the estate of Clarence Sanders, killed in an accident caused by a defective street.

Execution on the judgment was returned "no property found," and when suit was brought to require the additional tax levy the defense was interposed that under Section 157 of the constitution towns the size of Oakdale are limited to a tax levy of 75 cents on the $100, and prohibited from becoming "indebted in any manner for any purpose to an amount exceeding in any year the income and revenue provided for that year without the assent of two-thirds the voters thereof."

It was shown that the 75 cents levy is no more than sufficient to care for the bonded indebtedness and current expenses, and asserted that the constitution forbids further levy or incurring indebtedness.

The court, however, in an opinion by Judge Settle, held that the "limitations contained in that section apply to indebtedness created or attempted to be created by the municipality by contract, and having no application where the liability incurred by the municipality is for a tort caused by or resulting from its own negligence. For neglect of duty of the kind here complained of, the city is liable even though it has reached the limit of its power to contract debts or levy taxes. To hold otherwise would permit municipalities to take advantage of their own negligence and remove

GREATLY DELAYED

Are Farmers With Their Spring Plowing and They Want Good Weather Now.

Farmers generally as just a little concerned because they have little spring plowing done. The continued wet weather kept the ground in such condition, when not frozen, that plowing has been impossible, and they find themselves now, with the latter part of March here, with practically no plowing done. The attentive farmers like to have as much of this done as possible when the open season arrives that he may devote his time to other work. With the situation existing they say it means that their work will keep them very busy. They are very anxious now to get started, and favorable weather is much desired.
